The firemen made every exertion possible, but lack of water constantly hindered their efforts. They succeeded before noon, however, in getting the fire under control, although it was then still burning fiercely in some of the buildings. The walls of the brick buildings fell from time to time with a heavy crash. In the confusion prevailing it was impossible to obtain any details of the losses, and very difficult to make eyen an approximate estimate of their total amount. The lowest estimate of the latter is $1,000,000, and lives were lost, but the rumors on this point are very conflicting. It is probable that some workmen in the piano factory were unable to escape, but the number is not yet known by any one.
